

EXPERT TIP
The clever mix of colours and materials helps achieve a beach theme.

This kitchen captures the real essence of a Kiwi holiday home.

A beautiful kitchen for a beautiful holiday home

If there's one marker of the success of a kitchen design business, it would have to be the amount of repeat and referral business it gets. If a company does an excellent job on a project for you, you're more likely to use their services again if the opportunity ever arises.

So when the owners of this home needed someone to design a new kitchen for their beautiful holiday home, they knew exactly who to call. They had previously renovated the kitchen in their inner-city apartment and chose the team at Kitchen Link to complete the project. Extremely pleased with the results of this first partnership, they decided to team up with Kitchen Link again.

Located north of Auckland, this peaceful holiday retreat has a coastal theme. As well as complementing the rest of the home, the new kitchen needed to be as practical as possible; with everything laid out efficiently and intelligently, the owners could spend less of their holiday time in the kitchen and more time relaxing.

The first thing you notice when you step into the kitchen is that it's in keeping with the beach theme. The use of tapa, a bark cloth made in the islands of the Pacific Ocean, adds an attractive and unique feature. The hoop pine ply cabinetry creates a warm and welcoming tone that is further enhanced by the bamboo flooring.

When it comes to food preparation and cleaning, the stainless-steel benchtop is practical and low-maintenance. There's plenty of room for a couple of people to move around with ease and the top-notch appliances make cooking and storage a breeze.

"This kitchen has captured the real essence of a Kiwi holiday home," says designer Marianne Gailer. "With this combination of colour, texture and materials, you know you are in NZ." K80
